

Human Rights Commitment

1 Purpose

1.1 Introduction

As football is a world game, APIA recruits coaches and players from all parts of the world and therefore we are committed to respect human rights.

1.2 Our commitment

We are committed to respecting human rights and expect high standards of human rights performance across all departments and teams that wear the APIA badge.

We pride ourselves on acting with integrity and courage to foster an ethical culture where everyone embraces a sense of responsibility for doing the right thing. Respecting human rights across all our departments and teams activities helps uphold our core values and create a sustainable football community free of negative racial impacts.

1.3 APIA's Focus

Inclusion, Diversity and Equity

We are committed to promoting inclusiveness in Football and hence why Apia is committed to football for male and female participants, together as one we draw strength in our way of football from our differences.

We have a zero-tolerance approach to discrimination in our football community on the basis of protected attributes including race, colour, religion, national or ethnic origin, age, marital or relationship status, carer responsibilities, sex, sexual orientation or other status.

Proudly APIA is committed to respecting the rights of Indigenous Peoples. We value and embrace truth-telling and Indigenous cultural values within out football.
